

Bucks Dike Up Green Wave

Face Charlevoix Rayders Tomorrow

The Roscommon Bucks diked up the rampaging Grayling Green Wave last Friday at the Gerrish-Higgins Field and came from behind to win 13 to 7.

Grayling drew first blood in the initial quarter when the Grayling line broke through the Bucks forward wall to knock down an attempted punt. Grayling's end Dick Miller fell on the ball for a touchdown with halfback Jerry Smock circling the end for the point after to grab the lead 7 to 0.

In the second period Roscommon punched over from Grayling's ten yard stripe via the aerial route as the Bucks' quarterback snagged a pass to score. The Roscommon placement kick was good to tie the game at 7 all.

The Bucks figured as underdogs played the ballgame waiting for the breaks. They didn't miss when the break came and scored on a blocked punt in the third canto. Their try for extra points failed leaving the final score 13 to 7 as the remainder of the game proved a sawsaw battle.

The Gerrish-Higgins boys out battled the Green Wave most of the way with their charging much faster and their tackling much sharper. The local boys will be in for some hard workouts this week in an effort to get ready for the highly touted Rayders from Charlevoix who have victories notched already over Gaylord and Mancelona.

Rasmussen is being shifted to fullback where his running ability can be used to an advantage and the right halfback slot will be an open battle between Parkinson, Loper and Richardson. The line also will face a shakeup in an attempt to add speed. A spot in the Wave forward wall for Allison, newcomer from Missouri, is in prospect due to his fine showing in the past two ball games.

Scores of other games involving conference elevens over the week end are: Charlevoix 13, Marquette 0; East Jordan 6, Gaylord 0; Pellston 12, Harbor Springs 7; Petoskey 6, Boyne City 0.

New Home Of Grayling State Bank

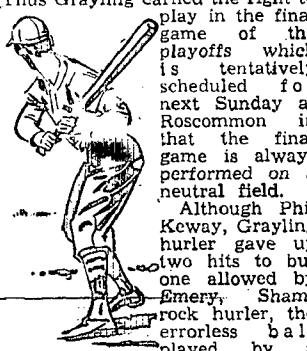

Next Monday morning the door of the Grayling State Savings Bank will open at 8 o'clock and it will mark the first day in their new building pictured above. The day has been set aside by the officers and directors of the institution for the public of this area to inspect the new building and its banking fixtures and equipment. Many out of town members of the state's financial family are expected to inspect the Grayling Bank's new home on Monday.

Grayling Wins Semifinal Playoff Game From Shamrocks By 1 to 0

Final Game Plans Set For Sunday

In an extremely tight pitcher's battle last Sunday afternoon at Roscommon's McNeil Field, the Grayling Independents came through with a lone score to top the Roscommon Shamrocks who had ruled the North Central Michigan Baseball League all season. Thus Grayling earned the right to play in the final game of the playoffs which is tentatively scheduled for next Sunday at Roscommon in that the final game is always performed on a neutral field.

Grayling nine that rose to the best form of the year gave Grayling the victory. Kellogg garnered the lone hit for the locals off Emery while Emercy collected both hits that Kew gave up. Phil whiffed 9 batters while issuing 6 bases on balls. Emery struck out 6 and gave passes to 2.

Roscommon made four misplays and they figured in Grayling's lone score. Stutesman of Fairview was the umpire behind the plate while Westerholm of Grayling and Hartman of Roscommon were on the bases.

Following are the two team's lineup:

Grayling	P.	Roscommon
Keway	P.	Emery
Thompson	C.	McGinnis
R. Hanson	1B	Bollou
Carlson	2B	K. Ostling
L. Smith	3B	Foreman
Kellogg	SS	Haight
Gilder	LF	Hinrich
Muhm	CF	Knapp
G. Hanson	RF	Hartman

Grayling will face Fairview at 2:30 Sunday afternoon for the championship. Fairview advanced to the finals by virtue of a 13 to 3 victory over Rose City last Sunday. The winner of Sunday's final contest of this year's baseball season will receive the league trophy. Brown of Mio will act as umpire-in-chief behind the plate with Westerholm of Grayling and Stutesman of Fairview on the bases along with a third base umpire who has not as yet been named.

FINAL RITES READ FOR WILLIAM STROPE

Final rites were read at the Sorenson Funeral Home at 2 o'clock, September 29th for William H. Strobe, Rev. Orrin Van Loon of Berkley, Michigan, officiated. Mrs. June Gross and Leo Koerper sang "Softly and Tenderly" and "Abide With Me." Interment was in Elmwood Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Stanley Flower, Floyd McClain, Batch Anderson and Leo Koerper of Grayling and Carl Muhme and William Moffit of Detroit, Mich.

The deceased was born in Troy, N. Y. December 31, 1870, to Abel and Martha Strobe. He lived in Troy and Detroit. In the latter place he married Emma Clara Felton on May 10, 1899. The couple have maintained a summer home at Lake Margrethe for 30 years. He was a member of the Metropolitan Methodist Church and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. He had been a locomotive engineer for the New York Central Railroad Company before his retirement.

Hunt Heirs Of A $20,000 Estate

The children who would be quite aged, and, therefore, more likely the grandchildren or great-grandchildren of Calcott Morehouse and his wife, Sarah, nee Rogers, are being hunted in central and northern Michigan to claim a $20,000 estate.

Walter C. Cox, probate genealogist, 208 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, who is in charge of the search, said the living heirs probably never heard of the money or the relative leaving it.

Mr. Cox, who specializes in tracing missing relatives to settle estates, added that Morehouse and Sarah Rogers are known to have been married in Michigan in about 1880, and there is evidence that their descendants are still living in the central or northern part of the state.

"Only the direct descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Morehouse," Mr. Cox said, "may claim the estate under the inheritance laws which apply. The money was left by a relative who died without descendants."

County's Lone Financial House Soon In New, Modern Setting

President Truettner Says Will Be Convenient

When the Grayling State Savings Bank closes the doors for business Saturday afternoon at its present quarters, it will mark nearly fifteen years and 9 months of service to the people of Grayling, Crawford County and this area in that building. It will also mark the last day that the bank will function in that building which belongs to John Bruun.

On Monday morning, October 6 at 8 A. M. the Grayling State Savings Bank will open the door for business at its new location at 212 Michigan Avenue, where rebuilding, remodeling and new construction work has been going on for sometime. The first day in the bright, shining new and modern quarters has been set aside as a day for inspection by the public of this area as well as people from financial circles from all over the state.

The bank front is of brick, as is the whole structure, painted a light gray with the window and door frames trimmed in white which sets the building with just the right touch. The large front window carries the name of the bank in gold leaf while the schedule of banking hours are on the front door window in the same style. On entering the front door, one finds a small vestibule which will break the weather before the spacious banking lobby proper is entered. The lobby is equipped with modern artificial lighting fixtures and natural light is provided here as well as throughout the building by glass block windows of a modern design with aluminum ventilating facilities built in.

Four teller's wickets are installed which will prove a great help to the banking public. The floors are of rubber tile in the main banking quarters with mosaic tile floors in the director's room, work room and the remaining portions of the building. The banking fixtures are of light oak finish which are waxed over a dull varnish. They are of the low type and modern in every respect for the convenience of the bank employees as well as the banking public.

The new addition which was added to the building is 24 feet in length and was added to provide a director's and conference room, a work room in which the bookkeeping will be handled, as well as a large increase in basement storage space. The new directors room is properly furnished and has a large fireplace. It will be used for public use when the need is evident, bank President Walter Truettner said. A new book-posting machine has also been installed in the workroom which will expedite the handling of accounts.

New plumbing and a brand new water heating system has been installed in the building. The biggest job and, of course, the most important was the building of a new cash and safety deposit vault which provides the space for 300 personal safety deposit boxes and ample room for as many more. The safety deposit vault will be entered by a separate door from the cash vault and two small coupon rooms are adjacent to the entrance for the use of lessees of the boxes in which they may take care of their affairs. The vault itself is constructed of poured concrete reinforced with heavy gauge steel. The door leading into the cash vault weighs three tons while the safety deposit door is of one and a half tons weight. Both doors are constructed of stainless steel and are equipped with dual time locks.

"The bank, its fixtures and rooms were all planned with the thought of serving the banking public of this area in an ample and satisfactory manner," President Truettner said. "We aim to give this area the best, most efficient banking service that it is possible to establish."

The bank has had phenomenal growth in its 15 years of existence and has set a record which any financial institution should be proud to point out. It is the only bank that has ever been chartered under the laws of the banking department of the State of Michigan in Crawford County, Mr. Truettner said.

Among those who worked on the bank during the time it was being remodeled and built were: Carl Schroeder of Gaylord who handled the masonry and concrete work, Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company of Hamilton, Ohio who built and installed the vault doors, Grand Rapids Marble and Tile Company who installed the floors, Westover-Kamm Company of Bay City who manufactured and directed the installation of the banking fixtures, Dewey Palmer installed the plumbing and heating equipment, Clement Blaine handled the wiring work, Carl Tahvonen was in charge of the carpentry work, Bab's Sign Service was in charge of the window sign work while Claude Cardinal was responsible for the painting of the building. Harold Rasmussen of Grayling has been engaged by the bank to handle the custodial work. The entire job of remodeling the existing building and constructing the new addition was under the direction of W. Roy Akitt of Detroit who was the bank's architect.

On the last day of June this year, the Grayling State Savings Bank was approved for membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Each depositor in the bank now and from now on will have a maximum of insurance up to $5,000 on his money which is on deposit with the institution. There is no obligation to the depositor for this added service. The bank assumes all costs of the insuring plan. Both commercial and savings accounts are covered up to the ceiling of $5,000.

Shortly after the first of this year, on January 20 to be exact, Walter F. Truettner of Detroit was named president of the Grayling State Savings Bank and the resignation of John Bruun, who for 15 years had very efficiently guided the institution, was accepted by the Board of Directors.

Mr. Truettner had held important positions in Detroit banks for twenty years, but seldom did a month pass when he was not traveling the state, meeting the state bankers, attending their functions and meetings. He was originally literally drafted to Detroit to develop the Michigan bank division of the old First National Bank, which he did so successfully that when the National Bank of Detroit was organized in 1933, he was appointed to the same position, which he has held for the last fourteen years.

He was elected president of the Michigan Bankers Association, the highest office within the power of the state bankers to bestow, in 1937, having previously served as first vice-president in 1936 and second vice-president in 1935.

A great deal of Mr. Truettner's time was devoted to public service. He was alderman of the City of Hesperia for three years, when he entered the banking business in 1899 after graduation from Oberlin College, and represented it on the board of supervisors of Gogebic County for six years, three of these as chairman of the board. He was a member of the board of education from 1907 to 1927, the last three years as president. Mr. Truettner represented Hesperia as state senator for three terms, in 1925-27, during which times he made important contributions as a member of the finance and appropriation committee, the banks and corporations committee, and the conservation committee.

John Bruun will remain in his building in which the bank has been located since its inception. He will carry on with his other businesses which because of their growth along with the steadily increasing banking business made his resignation from the bank imperative.

He will continue as trustee and secretary of the Salling-Hanson Company Trust, the T. E. Douglas Trust and as secretary and manager of the R. Hanson Trust, North Michigan Land and Oil Corp., the M. A. Auman Trust, and as agent of the Frank H. Thoman Trust, the Ward Land Company, the Talbot Oil Company, and as manager of the Grayling Agency which represents the Home Insurance Company, Phoenix Insurance Company, American Fire Insurance Company and the Auto-Owners Insurance Company.

Million Deer In State Herd

Michigan hunters still have a herd of about a million deer for their sport, in spite of heavy starvation losses in some deeryards last spring.

I. H. Bartlett, conservation department deer specialist, says at 30 per cent increase reported by conservation officers in the herd in the Upper Peninsula more than offsets losses in overpopulated areas lacking winter food below the straits.

All but three Upper Peninsula counties—Iron, Delta and Schoolcraft—show an increase in the summer counts of deer seen by conservation officers on routine patrol. In the Lower Peninsula the pattern of increase and decrease is most irregular, with more deer reported in Emmet, Charlevoix, Leelanau, Presque Isle, Montmorency, Kalkaska, Crawford, Mason, Lake, Muskegon, Clare Gladwin, Arenac and Iosco Counties, with less in the other counties open to deer hunting. Officers' observations indicate the Lower Peninsula as a whole has fewer deer than it had a year ago, but the excellent fawn crop reported in the Upper Peninsula is sufficient to maintain the statewide estimates of one million animals, according to Bartlett.

Another final estimate of the deer population is to be made November 1 just two weeks in advance of the regular deer hunting season.

Band Notes
One of the major sections of any band is the cornet section, and Grayling is fortunate in having a strong group of cornet players this year. That section includes: George Granger, Lee Agnew, Beverly Bolinger, Barbara Nelson, George Kessler, Betty Niederer and Betty Mathewson.

Our latest band recruit, Lee Agnew, is an excellent cornet player who will help to fill the gap left this year by the loss of two of last year's most experienced players. Lee has played with a number of bands and orchestras including the Wisconsin Symphony Orchestra.

The others with the exception of Beverly Bolinger, who has played a cornet for several years now, began taking lessons just a year ago, but since then, under the supervision of our instructor, Mr. Leroy Christian, have made almost unbelievable progress.

All the band is rooting for this hard working group of students who have the initiative to work for the thing they want and the thing that is so necessary to the progress of the band, better playing ability.

School will be closed Thursday and Friday, October 2 and 3, to enable the teachers of the Grayling School system to attend the Annual Michigan Education Association Institute at Traverse City.

Hot Air Did Not Work

A few months ago the Newburyport plan was enthusiastically ballyhooed from coast to coast. It was a scheme for stopping inflation in its tracks by cutting retail prices. Within a few weeks the fuss died down and the plan was dropped. Hot air and good intentions are poor weapons to combat economic law.

Another scheme has now appeared. The government launched a series of antitrust suits against basic industry, with the clear implication that these industries have been a substantial factor in bringing prices to current levels. Regardless of the legal justification for the suits, promotion of the idea that any basic industry today has deliberately raised prices on the obsolete theory of charging all the traffic will bear, is just plain political maneuvering — an effort to find a scapegoat. And it is doomed to failure, as was the unworkable Newburyport plan.

Our present inflation is deeply rooted in events of the past 15 years. It began with the idea that modern governments do not need balanced budgets, that expanding public debt is beneficial. It began with the development of the philosophy that the public treasury be pledged to forever abolish the responsibility of the individual to provide for himself. It has simply moved faster since the war which saw the public debt jump to nearly three hundred billion dollars. It will not end until every community and every individual finally comes to realize that government, even the immensely powerful U. S. government, must learn to spend less than it takes from the people in taxes.

If the government is going to start blaming various groups of private citizens for the inflation which was largely brought on by its own actions, why not start with the labor unions? Or better yet, why not start with an educational program to show people that when congressmen are patted on the back for securing unnecessary appropriations for home town activities, the ground is being prepared for still higher prices to come.

"It's Living That Counts"

I stole the title of this column from a magazine article that said a whole lot better than I can what farm and country life can mean.

We talk about farm profits, production, research, and mechanical improvements... but isn't it true, what we really value is the life country living offers us?... the chance to be close to our families and neighbors... children sharing in the chores... working with our own hands at a worthwhile job.

And country pleasures are simple: good talk at day's end, and a glass of mellow beer with friends... the companionship of man and wife, untroubled by distractions of the city... the mutual tolerance of one another's tastes—in choosing a friend, or a glass of beer, or a candidate for Governor.

Mind, I'm all for material improvements. But from where I sit, the real goodness of our country life is that spirit of tolerance, moderation, and good fellowship.

Announcement

On January 20th, this year, I resigned as President and Manager of Grayling State Savings Bank. I had served the bank since it opened its doors for business, January 2nd, 1932. The constant growth of the corporation and steadily increasing pressure of other work compelled me to resign. I take this opportunity to thank the clients of the bank who during the first fifteen years and twenty days of its existence reposed confidence in the management, directors and personnel without which the institution could not have grown to its present size, while serving the banking needs of Grayling and Crawford County. Due to unavoidable delays in construction of the new banking quarters at 212 Michigan Avenue, the business of Grayling State Savings Bank is still being carried on in my building at 110 Michigan Avenue, however, in spite of the abnormal conditions, difficulties in obtaining material, etc., the new quarters for the bank will be ready and open for business, October 6, 1947. Mr. Walter F. Truettner, the new president, and the old personnel will then be ready to give the people in this community banking service in a more modern and larger building, so that materially better service will be rendered than ever before. I extend to Mr. Truettner and his staff, my sincere best wishes for the continued healthy growth and success of the bank.

In the meantime, the following affairs will be carried on as heretofore in my own building at 110 Michigan Avenue.

Biology Excursion
The biology class went down to the Grayling Fish Hatchery Tuesday afternoon. Dr. Allison gave a very interesting talk on how to prepare slides. The laboratory in Grayling is the only one in the state making a study of fish diseases.

ments such as the dissecting, compound microscope, microtome, and the haemacytometer. He explained their use in his type of research.
We were particularly interested in how to prepare slides. It is necessary to dehydrate all the water from the tissue. Alcohol is used to take the place of the alcohol, as alcohol would mix with paraffin. The tissue is impregnated with paraffin so that all the cells will retain their natural position. After the paraffin is hardened, the tissue is cut into sections by the microtome, which will slice them down to 1/25,000 of an inch. Red and blue stains are used to make certain cells clearer. After the section has been stained, it is placed on the slide. The cover glass is held in place with balsam or rosin.
The class wants to thank Dr. Allison for a very interesting and educational lecture.

Helen Robarge.

"One Deer" for Archers in 18 Counties

Act No. 326 of the 1947 session of the Legislature, effective October 11, permits archers to take a buck, doe or fawn October 11-November 5 this year in Alpena, Benzie, Crawford, Gogebic, Ionia, Iosco, Iron, Leelanau, Luce, Mackinac, Montcalm, Montmorency, Newaygo, Ontonagon, Oscoda, Roscommon and Schoolcraft counties. Archers have been permitted to take a buck, doe or fawn in Alcona county since 1941. October 1-November 5 archers may take bucks with three-inch antlers in any county of the state.
Southward extension of the boundary of the territory open to hunting for bucks with firearms opens an additional 3,000 square miles, including areas of crop damage by deer. The regular gun hunting season is November 15-30.
Applications for gun hunting of antlerless deer November 1-10 in part of Alcona county are accepted by the conservation department's game division at Lansing through October 5, and 300 will be chosen from among the applicants, by lot.
In most northern counties one bear per hunter may be taken during deer season, but in some counties where bear are not protected there is no closed season or bag limit. Conservation officers will advise on local bear hunting regulations.

Hunting Season Now Started

Wednesday, October 1, the shooting starts in the Upper Peninsula as sportsmen begin the 1947 harvest of game birds and animals. Prime targets on opening day will be grouse - ruffed grouse in all of the peninsula except Drummond Island, and sharp-tailed grouse in all or part of the nine most easterly counties.
Archers may begin their deer stalking in any county of the state on October 1 also, but in all but Alcona-for antlered bucks only. Many may wait until October 11 when 17 counties-Alpena, Benzie, Crawford, Gogebic, Ionia, Iosco, Iron, Leelanau, Luce, Mackinac, Montcalm, Montmorency, Newaygo, Ontonagon, Oscoda, Roscommon and Schoolcraft-will be open for the taking of buck, fawn or doe with bow and arrow. The bow and arrow season ends November 5 in all counties except Alcona, where it continues through December 15 to assure archers some tracking snow.

Noon October 7 marks the opening of Michigan's 30-day duck season with the most severely limited bag in years-four ducks a day, eight in possession. National predictions about the duck supply have been gloomy, but wet weather has given Michigan hunters many more good shooting spots than they had a year ago.

Below the straits small game hunting begins October 15, with ruffed grouse hunting in the northern counties and a 12-day pheasant season south of Clare. A "save the hens" campaign is growing among pheasant hunters who will be beating heavy cover this season for a limited crop. On October 15 and 16, pheasant shooting starts at 10 A. M. Fox squirrels, abundant a year ago, are now scarcer in some areas, but reports on the season's rabbit production have been good. Rabbits seldom get hunters' full attention until the first few days of bird shooting are past, and in the north many wait for snow before going gunning for snowshoe hares.

Principal change reported by the Conservation Department in the regular deer season November 15-30 for hunters using firearms is a southward extension of the open zone boundary to include an additional 3,000 square miles in Muskegon, Ottawa, Kent, Montcalm, Ionia, Gratiot, Clinton, Shiawassee, Saginaw and Bay counties.

The Exception That Proves The Rule

The first authentic record of the birth of a Michigan whitetail deer fawn in September has been established here with the finding of a bleating little 6 1/4-pound orphan by a motorist 12 miles east of town.

First noted on the morning of September 13, the fawn was known to be an orphan when it was still at the same spot unattended that evening, and Conservation Officer Clarence Roberts of Grayling brought it in where it could be cared for. Earl Goddard of Ogemaw state game refuge, says the fawn, a healthy male in spotted coat, stands 18 inches high when he gets his meals from a bottle, at the refuge.

The fawn is believed to have been born September 10 or 11. Fate of the mother is unknown, but an emaciated doe in very poor condition was seen in the vicinity a week earlier, and it is believed she may have died giving birth.

Most Michigan fawns are born in late May or June, and special care at the refuge will be needed to raise the out-of-season arrival.

SOLDIER
HOME
By
Dorothy Zane Watson

He got up quickly then and put on his topcoat.

"I better go over to Murphy's, Kit. I haven't been there yet. They will be needing someone to look after them," he decided quickly.

"Can't I go too, Johnny?" she asked.

He turned around and faced her, put his hands on her shoulders and looked deeply into her eyes. "Kit, if ever I had a friend you are that friend!" His sincerity touched her.

They got to the house just as Mrs. Murphy and Jackie were arriving home from Jerry's funeral. Johnny had wondered if there had been more than a few people at the services. Jerry had few friends and after the shooting he had less.

Johnny and Kit thought Jackie and his mother had seen them stop, but they noticed that the two hurried on into the house.

"Jackie... come here," he called tenderly.

The little boy shook his head and bit his lips to keep back the tears, but they tumbled down over his cheeks regardless.

"No... I can't... Mama says you won't have any more to do with me now..." He hung his head in shame.

Kit ran to him and, opening the door, took him in her arms.

"Jackie... don't say such a thing. Of course, Johnny still loves you, honey," she promised him, holding his thin little body against her.

Mrs. Murphy came up behind them and Johnny nodded to her. She started to speak, but she silenced her.

"Don't try, Mrs. Murphy. We both have had sorrow," he answered her attempt.

"Thank you, Johnny." Her face was dry and only her eyes showed the agony and shame she had endured these last few days.

Jackie looked up at Johnny, idolizing his every move. He reached for his hand hesitatingly, found it and pressed it hard with his small fingers.

"You aren't mad, Johnny?" Johnny stooped down beside the child and put his arm about him.

"Listen, young man, I couldn't be mad at you if I wanted to be—and who said I wanted to, anyway?"

"I'm gonna get me a paper route, Johnny—on your paper, so's I can keep Mama," he declared boldly.

"Well, I think that would be pretty fine, Jack. And seems to me the Clarion needs an office boy about your size for Saturdays and summers," he suggested.

"About my size, Johnny?"

"That's right!"

Jackie looked worried for a minute. "But suppose I get a bigger size by next summer, Johnny?"

Johnny smiled and pretended to consider this. "Well, I expect the job might grow along with you, Jack!" he answered, laughing.

After Kit and Johnny had left the Murphy's house, Johnny had driven Kit to her uncle's house. He had promised her he would try to get some sleep that he needed badly.

He went to his room alone about dusk and when he reached the house he almost turned back.

Mrs. Morrison called to him from her living room as he started up the steps.

"Johnny?" she asked. "Someone has been trying to get you on the phone all afternoon."

"Who was it? Did they leave any word?" he asked without enthusiasm.

"No, they wouldn't give me their name; said they would call later. There... The ring interrupted her. "There the phone is now. Answer it, will you, Johnny? It might be your party again."

"I'll get it," he answered, as he walked to the phone.

"Hello... yes... this is he speaking. Who? Oh... yes. Yes, I understand now. I—I was just going to get a little sleep, but that can wait... You're sure you're not mistaken? She wants me to come there—now?" His face changed expression. "I guess I can—all right." To say that this turn of events puzzled him was a mild explanation. Jennifer Martin had sent for him.

When Jennifer Martin followed Kit and Johnny to the hospital the night of the shooting, she had no idea that she would get to see J. D., her son-in-law. She could only hope she would not be too late... that she might persuade them to let her see him for only a few minutes. That might be long enough. Not long enough to make up to him the unhappiness she had caused him in the last twenty-four years, but time enough to ask forgiveness and perhaps to give him the promise of something she still possessed the power to give.

She was informed of the seriousness of John Davis' condition and was not given any hope that she might see him. But she waited patiently in the waiting room and the nurse on duty, seeing the earnest desire of the little old lady to see the man-in-307, did not have the heart to tell her that J. D. would not be receiving visitors for some time.

CHAPTER XVII

At ten-thirty Miss Chaney, J. D.'s private nurse, came to the desk and asked if a Mrs. Martin had called since her patient had been admitted. The other nurse told her of the little old lady in the waiting room.

She showed Jennifer Martin to J. D.'s room and left her with instructions that she was to stay but a few minutes.

As Miss Chaney waited in the hall she thought how strange that her patient had known that Jennifer Martin would be waiting to see him. He had awakened about ten and had seemed a little brighter. He had asked her name and then had asked if Mrs. Martin had been to see him yet. She wondered how he had known.

She looked at her watch and noticed that five minutes had passed since she had shown Mrs. Martin into the room. She was just going to call her when the door opened and Jennifer Martin came out. The little old lady was smiling and thanked her very kindly for allowing her to see John Davis. She went on in to her patient then and stayed with him until at eleven forty-five he had a sudden change for the worse, and was dead within five minutes.

Jennifer Martin had gone directly to the car where Thomas was waiting to drive her back to Martindale.

"Did you see him, Madam?" he asked as he helped her into the car.

"Yes, Thomas, I did. It was all very successful. I think John Davis is going to live!" she answered determinedly.

"I am glad to hear that, Madam." He started the car. "Perhaps," he hesitated not knowing whether his question was too impertinent, "perhaps he will be coming to Martindale when he is better?"

"Of course he will, Thomas. Why shouldn't he?" she asked quickly.

"No reason at all, Madam." He suppressed a smile.

Riding toward Martindale he knew that this was the time to tell her. She deserved to know and he should have told her along with the many other things of which he had informed her during his long stay at Martindale, but the cunning face of Basil and the bitter threats he had promised him if he should ever tell kept him and his secret captive.

"There is something that I have kept from you, Mrs. Martin, and I feel now the time has come."

"Oh, do get on with it, Thomas, and quit beating around the bush!" she ordered him.

"Very well, Madam. Young Davis is the one who really rescued you from your room the night of the fire."

It took the old lady a moment to grasp this. "You mean Linda's boy?" She waited until he nodded his head. "You are positive?"

"Quite positive, Madam. I was there when he came up to the house and inquired about you."

"He did?" she asked quickly.

"Yes, Madam. And when I told him you were still inside, although no one knew where, he entered the house immediately to look for you."

"Why wasn't I told of this sooner?" she asked severely.

"Basil threatened to—expose me," he added shamefully.

"And what did he threaten to expose about you, Thomas?"

"Before I came to you as a young man I was involved in a murder in London. It is useless to say that I was innocent, since I was found guilty. I escaped through France and managed somehow to get to America. It was a few months later that I came to Martindale." He paused a moment. "I have been here ever since. Thirty-five years next March, Madam."

Waiting to See
John Davis

Mrs. Martin and Johnny Talk

Jennifer Martin did not answer him for a moment. She too was remembering what a friend as well as a perfect servant Thomas had been during those long years. She laid a white gloved hand on his arm.

"Well, Thomas, I think if you had had any notion of killing me you would not have waited this long."

"I have never had any intention of killing you, Madam. But there are some that... Forgive me." He straightened in the seat.

"Perhaps I know whom you mean, Thomas." She set her mouth firmly. "Now to get home. There's work to be done!"

Johnny could not help but remember the other two times he had come to the door of Martindale as he stood awaiting entrance that evening after Thomas had called him and asked him to come at Mrs. Martin's request.

The first time was only a little more than three months ago when Thomas had shown him into the hall and he had found his mother's portrait. And the second time was only a few nights ago and even now it seemed long ago and vague. So much had happened in so few hours.

Thomas appeared at the doorway and smiled more than courteously at him and he knew that the man's actions on his first visit had been merely orders of his grandmother's. He walked into the hall and on into the living room, looking unconsciously at the portrait. It was still there, but now—it was merely a fragment of his imagination or not? His mother seemed to be smiling, her face looked happier, somehow. He shrugged his shoulders and tried to throw off the imagination of such a thing.

He had little time to speculate, however, as Jennifer Martin entered the room almost immediately. She walked over to him and held out her hand to him.

"I cannot say how sorry I am to hear of your father's death. I hope you will believe my sincerity." She looked at him directly, but with tenderness on her wrinkled face.

Johnny knew that her sympathy was genuine and he smiled at her. "Thank you. Dad would be—glad to know—"

"Your father did know, John. I saw him an hour before he passed away. It was a great shock to me because I remember thinking that he would improve," she explained, walking to her usual chair beside the fireplace.

"You mean you saw Dad Friday morning?" Johnny asked, not quite believing her.

"Yes, I saw him that morning after you left. And then when I got home the nurse telephoned me. It made me very sad, John. I had planned so much for the future... so much to try to make up for the rest," she added slowly.

"Then he knew—"

"That I had finally come to my senses?" she interrupted him. "Yes, although I think he must have known even before I went to the hospital to see him."

"In that way you called me?" Johnny asked.

"Partly. I also called you to be present when Henry and his family arrive this evening. I have something to say to them that I, think you should hear. I learned today the truth of my rescue the night of the fire. Until then I was held by decency to supporting Basil, but now—" Her shoulders straightened rigidly and her lips were a pencil mark across her face.

"You had a close call," Johnny answered for want of anything to say.

"Yes, thanks to you I would have had more than that." She raised her eyebrows. "Although I hardly think Basil would have let me d knowing the will was still unchanged."

Johnny looked at her puzzled. He had known nothing about her will—and cared less.

"Half of the estate of Martindale was to go to you. I promised Linda that the month before you were born. Although I think even then she had a premonition she would die. I regretted the promise after her death, but stubborn as I am, I would never change it." She sighed deeply. "But now it will be changed!" Her black eyes snapped with anger.

"It will?" Johnny did not seem to understand. She had kept her promise to his mother all during the time she had despised him and his father, and now when she seemed to have changed her mind about them and they were in her favor, she had decided to break the promise? It was not very clear to him.

"Oh, Basil was the sly one, all right. He even had Kit persuaded to change my mind."

From Last Week

Five delegates from Michelson Memorial attended the Church School Crusade Convention at the Methodist Church in Gaylord last Thursday. The worship service was highlighted by an inspirational address by Dr. Chester A. McPheeters, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Church in Detroit. Various aspects of church school work were outlined in section meetings by state leaders, after which a hearty and thoroughly enjoyable supper was served in the basement by the Gaylord ladies. A fine group of young people from Grayling, accompanied by several interested adults, were on hand for the evening meeting, as part of the all-district Youth Choir, to assist with a fine song service under the direction of Rev. Miles DePogter, State Youth Director. In addition to the group singing, the choir offered several special numbers. Dr. DePogter was the speaker at the evening meeting, ending a very helpful and inspiring convention.

Sunday's rainy weather took heavy toll of the attendance in all classes except the Faithful Fourth, who turned out 100% strong, plus two visitors, thus retrieving the banner from the sadly depleted Fifth.

Sylvia Robertson received congratulations on her recent birthday anniversary.

The Michelson Memorial Youth Fellowship was scheduled to meet in the church for a potluck supper and meeting Tuesday evening.

Next Sunday is Promotion Sunday, and all classes will be conducted to their new quarters and teachers.

The church school staff will meet in the church Wednesday evening, October 1, to make final plans for Rally Day and the fall program.

Leaders' Training

Meeting on Tuesday

The first Leaders' Training meeting for Crawford County for this year will be held Tuesday, October 7, 1947 in the basement of the Grange Hall in Grayling from 10 A. M. to 3:30 P. M.

The lesson, "New Hats From Old," will be taught by Virginia Vance, District Home Demonstration Agent, and will include instructions on the cleaning and blocking of hats, freshening of veils and ribbons and the retrimming of hats.

How to reduce the millinery bill, save material, and yet have a hat which adds to one's appearance is of interest to every woman.

Practically every woman has an old hat which she wishes she might wear. It may be one which she has enjoyed but is now outdated or soiled, or it may be one which was a mistake in the first place. With planning, perseverance and a little "know how," most women can clean and retrim an old hat and give it a new, up-to-date look.

It is hoped that all the leaders of the Home Extension groups for Crawford County will make a special effort to attend this lesson.

Local Man Served With Lansing Warrant

Editor's Note: The following story is from the columns of the Lansing State Journal.

Kurt Kitchen of Grayling, conductor on a New York Central railroad freight train was served with a warrant in Lansing last Friday morning, charging him with violating a city ordinance by allowing his train to block a crossing for 17 minutes.

The warrant, the first of its kind to be issued here, was based on the complaint of Sgt. Warren C. Eddie of the police traffic division.

Eddie said that on September 18 the New York Central freight train blocked the Larch street crossing near the Motor Wheel plant for 17 minutes. The ordinance forbids obstructing any railroad crossing in the city in excess of five minutes, Eddie said.

The charge was placed against Kitchen because he was the conductor and therefore in complete charge of the train. Kitchen said explained that the train was signaled to a siding to let Pere Marquette streamliner pass but the latter passenger train 18 minutes late.
